Skinner; 3 bales blankets, 1 bag coffee, 1 crate crockery, 1 case haberdashery, 1 case books, Campbell and Co.; 9 casks bottled beer, 1 bag corks, Brown and Co.; 9 cases oilmen's stores, 2 boxes candles, 5 boxes glass, 2 casks blacking, 1 cask cheese, 29 bags coffee, 21 bags sugar, 36 bags rice, 4 chests tea, 6 boxes sperm candles, 1 bag almonds, 4 mats oilmen's stores, 1 bale paper, 1 hogshead basket salt, 28 boards cedar, 10 boxes soap, 7 boxes candles, 1 case earthenware, 1 bag loaf sugar, 1 bag oatmeal, 3 bags salt, 1 cask blacking, Robert Porter; 120 bags flour, 124 bags biscuit, 6 boxes candles, Buyers and Lochhead; 1 case saddlery, 40 bags flour, 22 bags salt, 100 sheep, John Giblett; 7 cases and 9 trunks drapery, R. Graham; 1 case apparel, John Morris; 1 case earthenware, 1 case musical instruments, W. Wright.

The Jane Goudie was at anchor in Watson's Bay last night, and will proceed to sea this morning.

The Kinnear has on board 9638 bags sugar, 13 boxes and 19 half boxes cigars, and 42 coils bale lashing. The Judith and Joseph Wheeler had both sailed from Manila for Sydney, and the Robert Matthews sailed on the 8th November for Port Phillip. The Kinnear signalled the Peruvian on the passage, by which vessel she was reported as the Giraffe.

The Anita left Sydney on the 12th instant, and had a fine run of about 400 miles on her course, when a strong head wind sprung up, in which she carried away the fastenings of her bowsprit, also one of the beams, which compelled her to bear up for Sydney.

The barque Cecilia and schooner Munford have been chartered by Government to convey coals to New Zealand, and are about to proceed to Newcastle to load.

The Midlothian left the Downs (with the mail) on the 4th October, 1844, and arrived in Sydney January 20, 1845. As she was to leave London the same time last year, perhaps she may make her appearance this morning.

The whaler South Carolina, now at Newcastle, may be expected to arrive in Sydney tomorrow, for Newcastle not being a port of entry, no oil can be landed from her there. This will be an additional argument for the inhabitants in their application to have Newcastle made a free port.

The Coolangatta left the Bay of Islands before the Louisa, and therefore brings no news. The barque Perseverance, Captain Corkhill, was advertised to leave Auckland for Sydney on or before the 3rd instant. The barque Strathisla, hence, arrived at Auckland on the 19th ultimo. The schooner I Don't Know, from Port Nicholson, arrived at Auckland on the 26th ultimo. The Coolangatta touched at Howe's Island on the passage from New Zealand, at which place the following Sydney whalers were reported:—November 18. Clarkstone, Nixon, twenty-one days out, clean. January 1. Juno, Hayes, twenty-one days out, with 60 barrels black oil.

The Regia has hauled to the Circular Wharf, to commence loading for Adelaide.

"Sworn to no master, of no sect am I."

THE GOVERNOR'S MEMOIR ON THE FINANCIAL SYSTEM.

IN the Sessional Paper No. 372 of the House of Commons, ordered to be printed 12th June, 1845, there appears an elaborate paper from the pen of his Excellency SIR GEORGE GIPPS, dated 30th September, 1844, under the title of 'Memoir of the Financial System of New South Wales.'

When we observed, in one of HIS EXCELLENCY's despatches of subsequent date, an allusion to this 'Memoir,' we at once formed the expectation that it would be found a valuable historical document, consisting of facts clearly stated and arranged, illustrating, in a calm philosophical spirit, the origin, progress, and rationale of all that is peculiar in the financial system of this colony. We confess we have been disappointed—much disappointed. Instead of the dignified and useful paper we had looked for, we have found little more than a repetition of what had already been frequently advanced by the GOVERNOR and the COLONIAL SECRETARY in their several speeches in the Legislative Council. We perceive in it no new fact of any weight. But even old facts—or those previously known to the colonists—might have formed an interesting chapter in our financial history, had they been put forward according to historical rules, and for purely historical purposes. But such is not the case. The paper upon which its author has bestowed the sounding title of "Memoir," is in reality a controversial pamphlet. We see on the very face of it that it was dictated by controversial feelings, directed to controversial ends, and written under the one-sided views of controversial partizanship.

It is, in fact, a reply to the speeches delivered in Council, chiefly those of Mr. WENTWORTH, and to the arguments of the Press, chiefly those of our own journal, on the subject of Sir RICHARD BOURKE's celebrated 'Compact.'

On the 17th September, 1844, the Council passed a series of resolutions, of which the following was one:—

"That it is the opinion of this Council, that a compact was entered into, on the 18th of May, 1835, by His Excellency Sir R. BOURKE, with the late Legislative Council of this colony, by which the Council undertook to defray the expenses of police and gaols, and the Crown to cede to the Council the surplus of the casual and territorial revenues of this colony, after defraying the expenses of emigration; that Sir RICHARD BOURKE was fully authorised to make this compact by the letter of the Lords of the Treasury, signed F. BARING, and dated 23rd September, 1834; and that this compact has since been acted on, and thereby ratified; but this Council is of opinion that the colony of New South Wales ought to be placed in the same situation as other colonies, which have had the management of all the revenues of the Crown made over to them; and that it is moreover entitled to receive a contribution from the British Government towards the expenses occasioned by the landing on its shores of British criminals."

This with the other resolutions was presented to the GOVERNOR in an address, to which HIS EXCELLENCY made the following reply:—

"Gentlemen,—With the greatest possible regret, I feel myself compelled to say that I cannot comply with the request contained in the last of these resolutions,* though it will be my duty to refer the whole of them for HER MAJESTY's commands."

When we mention that this reply bears date the 27th September, and the 'Memoir' the 30th of same month, we shall have shown a pretty close connexion in point of chronology. As the address was intended to be the winding up of the numerous and lengthy debates, so the Memoir was intended to be an unwinding of the whole.

The Memoir is ushered in by a sort of preface, entitled, 'Introductory Remarks.' The first of these remarks purports to be a concise statement of the points at issue between the contending parties; and is in the following words:—

"The Council maintains that by a compact entered into in the year 1834, the right to appropriate the territorial and casual revenue was given up by the Crown, and became vested in the Governor and Legislative Council, with the exception of so much of it as might be required in any year for the purposes of immigration; whilst on the other hand the Governor contends that the Council acquired in 1834 no general power over the Crown revenue, but the right only to appropriate such sums of money derived from it as may be placed by the Crown at the disposal of the Council from year to year; and that the Crown has still the power to select the object on which the Crown revenue shall be spent."

The contra is here stated neither explicitly nor fairly. The Council had not claimed,—at least they had not claimed in virtue of the compact,—any 'general power over the Crown revenue;' and the GOVERNOR's resistance of such a claim was, therefore, but fighting with the air. He ought to have said what he meant:—that the Council had no claim even to so much of the Crown revenue as should be left after defraying the expenses of immigration.

After this opening of the case, the Introduction proceeds to 'exemplify,' as it says, 'the nature of the difference' between the Council and the GOVERNOR. It mentions six instances in which, subsequently to the date of the compact, the Crown revenue was dealt with otherwise than for immigration, without a vote of the Council:—1st, The SECRETARY OF STATE's directing, in the year 1837, that the expense incurred in Sir THOMAS MITCHELL's exploration should be defrayed out of that revenue; 2nd, Sir RICHARD BOURKE's proposing, and Lord GLENELG's consenting, that the expenses of the first establishments at Port Phillip should be defrayed out of that revenue; 3rd, Sir RICHARD BOURKE's again proposing that a gratuity should be paid to Captain LEWIS out of that revenue; 4th, Sir RICHARD's further proposing that compensation should be made to Mr. MOORE out of that revenue; 5th, Lord JOHN RUSSELL's directing that provision should be made for the aborigines out of that revenue; and, finally, HER MAJESTY's Government proposing to Parliament the 29th clause in the 5th and 6th VICTORIA, c. 76, which prohibits the Legislative Council from taking any part whatsoever in the appropriation of the revenue arising out of the Crown Lands of the colony. In all these instances, says the Introduction, the compact, if such a compact there ever was, had been 'violated.' We have not the despatches before us, to judge for ourselves how far their actual words justify Sir GEORGE GIPPS's construction of them; but assuming that construction to be correct, we have only to declare our concurrence with his EXCELLENCY's inference, that Lord GLENELG, Sir RICHARD BOURKE, Lord JOHN RUSSELL, and Lord STANLEY, all stand convicted of a direct breach of faith.

* Praying that he would be pleased to take them into his favourable consideration, and carry them into effect.

LAW INTELLIGENCE.

CENTRAL CRIMINAL COURT.

MONDAY.

BEFORE their Honors Mr. Justice DICKINSON and Mr. Justice A'BECKETT.

CHARGE OF MURDER.

Mr. PUREFOY moved for the discharge of Michael Keene, a prisoner then under committal for murder.

The ATTORNEY-GENERAL consented to the discharge of the prisoner alluded to. This man, he said, was committed for a murder which occurred four years ago, upon which occasion the depositions were taken by a magistrate in the absence of the prisoner, and on recently examining the witnesses, he, the Attorney-General, was convinced that the prosecution could not be sustained.

The prisoner was then discharged.

SENTENCES.

Amos Street, a soldier, who had been found guilty of burglary, was sentenced by Mr. Justice A'BECKETT to be imprisoned and kept at hard labour in Sydney Gaol for the space of two years, and at the end of that period to be returned to his regiment.

John Usher, who had been convicted of horse-stealing, was sentenced by Mr. Justice A'BECKETT to be transported for ten years.

Ann Simmons, who had been convicted of perjury, was sentenced by Mr. Justice A'BECKETT to eighteen months' imprisonment in Sydney Gaol.

GAOL DELIVERY.

Joseph Jones, who had been committed on a charge of robbery at Moreton Bay, was discharged by the consent of the ATTORNEY-GENERAL, who stated that the case was not ready for trial, and that as the charge was not of a serious nature, the prisoner, who had been a long time in gaol, had probably suffered punishment enough, even supposing him to be guilty.

James Kelly was arraigned upon an information, charging him with having at the Clarence River, on the 26th of November last, assaulted one Lavinia Barrett, with intent to violate her person. To this information the prisoner pleaded not guilty, and he was then remanded for trial.

Edward Ford, who had been committed under the coroner's warrant for manslaughter, having been placed at the bar,

The ATTORNEY-GENERAL stated, that although the prisoner had been placed in his present position by the verdict of a Coroner's Jury, he (the Attorney-General) having carefully gone through the depositions, was at a loss to perceive any evidence to warrant such a verdict. It appeared that some riotous and drunken persons who were going about with music at Christmas, had broken into the prisoner's house in the dead of the night, and the deceased, who was one of the party, had been so severely beaten as to cause his death. The prisoner, however, had not been identified, and even if he had been, the circumstances were such as would probably amount to a justification—he should therefore decline to prosecute.

The prisoner was then discharged by proclamation.

The remainder of the prisoners in the gaol had either been tried and convicted or were awaiting their trial.

The Court adjourned till Saturday next.

SUPREME COURT.—SITTINGS IN BANCO.

MONDAY.

BEFORE their Honors the three JUDGES.

RETURNS.

The Master in Equity, Sheriff, Prothonotary, and Chief Clerk, presented the usual returns relative to the several departments under their charge, which returns were ordered by the Court to be filed.

SCHEDULE OF FINES.

The schedule of fines imposed for the non-attendance of persons summoned to attend as jurors having been read over, executions were ordered to issue against Messrs. John Lord and Thomas S. Mort. The fines imposed upon Messrs. H. Macdermott, Thomas Howe, John Little, William M'Nab, and John Walker, were remitted by the Court upon various grounds, and the fine of £5 imposed upon Mr. George Wilkie, was remitted to £1.

NEW MAGISTRATES.

Samuel Raymond Esq., L.L.D., was sworn in as a magistrate of the City of Sydney and County of Cumberland; and James Richard Styles, Esq., was sworn in as a magistrate of the territory.

THE QUEEN v. HAYES.

In this case a writ of Habeas Corpus had been issued for bringing the prisoner, Patrick Hayes, before the Court, with a view to his being discharged, upon the ground that the commitment was bad in law.

Mr. MICHIE, who appeared on behalf of the prisoner, stated, that if the matter was to be argued at length, he should ask as a matter of indulgence, for a postponement of the case until a later hour of the day, or of the following morning.

A short conversation here ensued between Mr. MICHIE and the Bench, in the course of which their HONORS intimated that they regarded the commitment as bad. Mr. MICHIE then moved that the prisoner be discharged.

The ATTORNEY-GENERAL stated, that although he intended to argue the points at issue, he was not prepared to do so, inasmuch as he had received no notice of the matter until Saturday evening, and had been compelled to attend the Criminal Court at nine o'clock, on that (Monday) morning; he therefore requested an adjournment. The SOLICITOR-GENERAL likewise submitted to the Court, that the Crown was entitled to a postponement under the circumstances already stated, and that as the points taken were purely of a technical nature, and quite irrespective of the merits, the Bench ought not to hurry on the proceedings with railroad speed, in order to procure the prisoner's discharge. The SOLICITOR-GENERAL also stated, however, that he was prepared to argue the case, in the event of its being forced on by the Court: for although there had been no time for the Crown Officers to be regularly instructed, he had prepared himself from private information which he had received.

After some further discussion their HONORS intimated that the matter must be argued and disposed of at once.

The argument was then proceeded with, Mr. MICHIE moving for the prisoner's discharge, and the SOLICITOR-GENERAL showing cause against the application. The prisoner, Patrick Hayes, had been convicted of keeping an illicit still, before the Parramatta Bench, and having been sentenced to pay a fine of £200 had been committed to gaol for default in the payment of such fine. The principal points upon which the prisoner's discharge was now moved for were, first, that the conviction was illegal, inasmuch as the prisoner had been sentenced to pay a fine of £200 for keeping an illicit still, whereas by the Act of Council, 9th Victoria, No. 26, a fine of £200 was imposed upon every defendant, for the premises where illicit distillation was carried on, and a similar amount for every still discovered there; so that the sentence in this case ought to have been a fine of £400:—secondly, that the magistrates had in cases of this nature no power to adjourn their proceedings, and it appeared in this case that the sentence had not been imposed until three days after the conviction: and thirdly, that by the warrant of commitment the conviction appeared to have been on the same day as the information.

After a lengthened argument upon the above points, the COURT decided that the first ground of objection as to the construction of the thirty-fifth section of the Act 9th Victoria No. 25, was fatal, and that the prisoner must, upon this ground, be discharged. With reference to the second objection, their HONORS were of opinion that it was quite competent for the magistrates to take time for the consideration of their sentence, after having determined as to whether the defendant was guilty or not guilty. Upon the third point, the Court abstained from expressing any opinion.

The prisoner was then discharged.

A number of unimportant motions having been heard and disposed of, the Court adjourned till ten o'clock this morning.

DOMESTIC INTELLIGENCE.

INSOLVENCY PROCEEDINGS.

MONDAY.

BEFORE the CHIEF COMMISSIONER.

PROOF OF CLAIMS, &c.

In the estate of Robert Wood, a special meeting was held, for the purpose of deciding on an offer of composition, when, as no definite arrangements were agreed to, the meeting was adjourned till the 10th of February next. The following claims were proved:—Gold's Patent Cut Glass Company, Birmingham, £531 9s; Samuel Shakespeare, also of Birmingham, £71 4s.; Phineas Nathan, of London, £193 3s. 9d.

In the estate of Henry Smithers Hayes, an adjourned third meeting was held, at which Thomas Woolley proved a claim for £5 17s. 6d. The insolvent was allowed to purchase £80 worth of his furniture. The meeting also left it to the discretion of the official assignee to fix the time when the sale of the furniture, &c., is to take place.

MEETINGS FOR TO-DAY.

William Lynch, a special meeting, to decide on an offer of composition, at eleven o'clock.

Proper De Mestre, a special meeting, at half-past eleven.

MEETINGS FOR TO-MORROW.

Richard Pipe, a special meeting, at half-past ten o'clock.

Samuel Furneaux Mann, a special meeting, also at half-past ten.

CITY COUNCIL.

MONDAY.

PRESENT—The Mayor, Aldermen Allen, Broughton, Holden; Councillors Thurlow, Sillitoe, Fisher, Iredale Driver, Smidmore, Jenkins, Hyndes, Ryan, Henderson, Agars, Neale, Wilkie, Josephson.

The TOWN CLERK read the minutes of the previous meeting.

THE MAYOR'S SIGNATURE.

The MAYOR being about to sign the minutes of the proceedings of last meeting,

Mr THURLOW said, that he had to protest against the record, as he denied the right of the Mayor to vote upon a question, or to divide the Council till called upon.

The MAYOR said he had signed the minutes.

The TOWN CLERK suggested that the Councillor should enter a protest.

The MAYOR suggested, that Mr. Thurlow should speak to the question, so that the opinion of the Council should be obtained.

Mr. THURLOW referred to the bye-laws of the Council, stating that there were ten members present—agreed upon a motion; that there was no division, and the Chairman or Mayor could not divide the Council under such circumstances; the Mayor must quit the chair, and then there would be no Council, and the meeting would be dissolved.

Alderman BROUGHTON said that he did not come prepared for the question raised by Mr. Thurlow; but he would state his opinion, that the Mayor should not be deprived of the privileges enjoyed by every member of the Council of expressing an opinion—and dividing the Council when his opinion was adverse to all other Councillors present. He contended that the Legislature intended to give this power by giving to the Mayor a casting vote, by which he was to exercise a larger power than other Councillors; and, he contended, the only way in which the Mayor could act, was to act as the Mayor had done.

Mr. IREDALE said that the Mayor was a member of this Council, and had a right to vote.

Mr. TITTERTON said that there had been no division called for, and while no division was called for, the Mayor could not alone call for a division without leaving the chair—then there would be no Chairman, and consequently could be no division.

The MAYOR stated, that on the occasion alluded to there were none on the opposite side; all in favour of the motion were to the left; the Chairman was at the left—in the chair. He did not leave the chair—and the record of the meeting was made accordingly. He (the Mayor) still maintained that the Mayor did right on the occasion, and had a right to record his vote whenever he chose.

COUNCILLORS' FINES.

The MAYOR went on to state, that a number of informations had been filed against parties, members of the Council, for non-attendance. One party had been proceeded against, but an execution had not been issued. There were several informations besides, but he wished to say that if the Council authorized the recovery from one absentee, he would take care that all informations should be proceeded with.

A conversation ensued, and it was resolved that all informations against absentee Councillors should be proceeded with, and the penalties recovered forthwith.

LIGHTING THE CITY.

The business on the paper was for the consideration of the Lighting Committee's report.

Alderman HOLDEN said, it might appear extraordinary that he should, as Chairman of the Lighting Committee, decline moving in the matter, but when he saw petitions against lighting and none for it—notwithstanding the representations of the Press that lighting was wanted, he should not move in the matter, but leave the citizens to blame themselves if they should want light or suffer from its absence hereafter.

Mr. TITTERTON spoke with reference to the petition from Macquarie Ward, and stated that he could between this (4 P.M.) and dark obtain as many signatures, and those respectable ones, in favour of the Report.

Mr. FISHER moved the adoption of the Report. He had no doubt, he said, that if the motion was put an amendment would be moved to exclude Cook and Phillip Wards, and this he should not oppose. He alluded also to the case of the publicans, who at present were compelled to light the city, but who would probably be relieved from that necessity by an Act of the Legislature, and would then not require the exemption from lighting-rates which had been prayed for. He would rather he said have one gas-light at his door than twenty policemen about it, and he had no doubt that experience would speedily teach every citizen the same.

Some objection having been made to the moving the adoption of the Report because all the wards were included,

Mr. FISHER went on to say that he could not see any objection to his moving the adoption of the Report as it stood.

After some conversation, Mr. FISHER said, it would be better for the Town Clerk to read the Report of the Lighting Committee.

Mr. COWLISHAW moved that the Council should go into Committee to discuss the Report—and Mr. SILLITOE supported the motion, which was carried.

The Council resolved itself into Committee.

The various reports of the Lighting Committee were read.

Alderman ALLEN moved, that so much of the Lighting Committee's report as referred to the lighting of the city with gas, be adopted, and that a rate sufficient for that purpose be levied.

Mr. TITTERTON seconded the motion. If Cook and Phillip Wards chose to be in darkness, other wards, he hoped, would not; with respect to Macquarie Ward, the utmost number of rate-payers that had signed the petition against lighting was one hundred; while there were four hundred and more who preferred to have their ward well lighted. Let Cook and Phillip Wards remain in darkness if they would.

Mr. FISHER supported the motion, expressing a hope that the motion would be carried unanimously; remarking, however, that Cook Ward, so for as gas was concerned, was only to be rated at £15 a year;—with respect to oil, he did not consider it unreasonable in the people of Cook and Phillip Wards to oppose the lighting with oil.

Mr. AGARS opposed the motion, on the ground that the Council was bound to light the whole city, and where gas could not be supplied, the streets should be lighted with oil—especially in a port which depended so much on the whale fishery; he opposed the exclusive motion of the Alderman, and should move that the whole of the city be lighted, such parts as might be with gas, others with oil—and that an equable rate should be raised upon all to defray the whole expense, as all the inhabitants of all the wards would derive equal advantages from gas lights and from oil lights, in whatever ward the gas or the oil might be used.

Mr. SILLITOE supported the motion for lighting the city with gas, so far as practicable. He should be happy to support a resolution to light the inhabitants of Cook and Phillip Wards afterwards.

Mr. COWLISHAW supported the motion for gas lights, so far as practicable; and denied that oil lights would be sufficient for, or of advantage to, Cook and Phillip Wards; he denied that it would be of advantage to promote oil lighting any more than gas—as many hands were employed, and much money was expended, in raising coal to supply gas. With respect to the petition from Macquarie Ward, he regretted that the Alderman who had presented it was not present, as he was well informed that many of those who signed the petition from Macquarie Ward had so signed at the request of the Alderman. He stated this publicly, and he did so because he thought that such course as had been pursued should not.

Mr DRIVER opposed the motion. He thought the hubbub for lighting would cease in a short time, as the hubbub for an increase in the police, at the time that the Press cried out that the Tank streams would flow with blood, unless the numbers of the police were increased, had ceased—and there was now no outcry.

Mr. JENKINS opposed the motion. He did not think that the people were able to bear additional taxation; and if they were they were opposed to it; and as the majority of the people of Phillip Ward were opposed to the lighting, they should be listened to.

After some conversation,

Mr HYNDES moved that Cook Ward be exempted from the lighting rates.

Mr. IREDALE objected to such a motion, on the ground that Cook Ward could not be taxed at all if it were carried.

Mr. SILLITOE explained that the only part of Cook Ward that would be taxed would be Lyons-terrace, and so much of Elizabeth-street as was in the Ward.

Alderman ALLEN replied at some length, advocating the advantages of lighting.

Alderman HOLDEN opposed the motion, not because he was opposed to it himself, but because the voice of the citizens had been raised against the lighting, and there had been no petitions sent in in favour of it.

After some further conversation in Committee, the motion of Alderman Allen was put and carried by a show of hands.

The Council resumed.

The MAYOR reported the resolution as passed.

Alderman ALLEN moved that the report of the Mayor be adopted.

Mr RYAN seconded the motion.

[Considerable confusion ensued on some amendment which Mr. JENKINS wished to propose with respect to Phillip Ward.]

At length,

Mr. JENKINS proposed an amendment to the effect that the report of the Lighting Committee be adopted, except so much as referred to the lighting of Phillip Ward.

Mr. THURLOW seconded the motion.

Mr. TITTERTON said that Parramatta-street, a portion of Phillip Ward, required lighting as much or more than any other part of any other ward, and he should oppose the amendment with all his might.

Mr FISHER opposed the amendment. It was not fair that he or others living at the other end of the town should be made to light their northern end, and yet be exposed to break their necks at the southern end of the main street of the city—George-street and Parramatta-street.

Mr. COWLISHAW also opposed the amendment; referring to various accidents which had occurred to himself, as well as to others, from want of lights in Parramatta-street.

Mr. LITTLE opposed the adoption of the Report.

Mr. JOSEPHSON supported the motion.

The question was at length put on the amendment, which was lost.

The question was then put on the original motion, which was carried.

Alderman ALLEN then proposed to move that it be referred to the Lighting Committee, to ascertain what rate would be required to carry out the resolutions which had been passed.

But after some conversation,

Alderman ALLEN moved that a rate of 1½d be raised to meet the expense of lighting with gas, as proposed in the former resolution.

Alderman BROUGHTON opposed the resolution as premature; it was not known that 1½d. was required—and it would be injustice to the citizens in Cook Ward to make them pay 1½d for three lamps if the others had no more to pay.

There was some discussion, but it was difficult from the noise to understand all that the speakers said.

Mr. HYNDES and Alderman HOLDEN opposed the motion, the latter contending that after the information received as to the price of coals, the Lighting Committee should again be referred to to ascertain the amount of rate required. He said also that in his opinion it would be better to purchase lamp posts, &c., at once, instead of renting them.

Finally, the motion of Alderman ALLEN was put and carried.

LACHLAN SWAMP.

Mr DRIVER moved that the prayer of the petition of Robert Morrow, watchman at the Lachlan Swamp, praying for an increase of wages from 17s. 6d. to 24s per week, which petition had been presented by him on a former day, be granted.

Mr NEALE seconded the motion.

Alderman ALLEN moved that the petition be referred to the Committee appointed to consider all the salaries.

Mr. Ryan seconded the motion.

The petition was referred to the Committee accordingly.

FINANCE.

The payment of sundry accounts, amounting to £14 13s. 7d., was ordered in the terms of the Report of the Finance Committee of date 5th January.

RATES.

The prayer of the petition of Edward Kennedy, praying for a reduction of rates on his property at Woolloomooloo, was rejected.

The Council adjourned at a quarter past six, to next Monday week. 2nd February.

COURT MARTIAL.

HEAD QUARTERS, SIMLA, AUGUST 26.—At a General Court Martial holden at Poona, on Thursday, the 24th day of July, 1845, Lieut. J. A. Macdougall, of her Majesty's 28th Regiment, was arraigned on the following charges:—

For conduct unbecoming the character of an officer and a gentleman, in having, at Camp, near Poona, on or about the night of the 27th June, 1845, or morning of the 28th June, 1845, used grossly abusive language towards Lieut. T. L. Leader, of her Majesty's 2nd (the Queen's Royal) Regiment of Foot, and for having then and there struck that officer.

FINDING AND SENTENCE.—The Court is of opinion, from the evidence before it, that the prisoner, Lieutenant J. A. Macdougal, of Her Majesty's 28th Regiment, is guilty of the charge preferred against him, which being in breach of the Articles of War, it does adjudge him to be dismissed Her Majesty's service.

Approved and confirmed.

(Signed) H. GOUGH, General,

Commander-in-Chief, East Indies.

Head Quarters, Simla, August 23, 1845.

RECOMMENDATION TO MERCY.—The Court having performed what it considers to be its duty, in awarding the heavy punishment recorded, begs, under the peculiar circumstances of the case, most earnestly and respectfully to recommend the prisoner to the merciful consideration of his Excellency the Commander in Chief.

REMARKS BY THE COMMANDER IN CHIEF.—The Commander in Chief, under the very peculiar circumstances of the case, is pleased to yield to the recommendation of the Court, and to remit the sentence. Lieutenant Macdougall will accordingly be released from arrest, and return to his duty.

By order of his Excellency the Commander in Chief, H. G. SMITH, Major-General,

Adjutant General, H.M. Forces in India.

THE BANK CASE.

IN the Herald of the 16th instant, in an article headed "The Bank Case," appears a paper, purporting to refute by certain "answers" the "assertions" made in a memorandum inserted in the leading article of the same journal on the Monday previous.

1. In answer to the first "assertion," "That the Bank of Australia was lucratus by the loan of £150,000, and that the bulk of the money did not go into the coffers of Hughes and Hosking, but was paid into the coffers of the Bank of Australia," is cited the evidence of Mr. Walker on the 31st March, 1845, that "during the period of this loan, upwards of £150,000 was paid to Hughes and Hosking by the Bank (Australia)." Mr. Walker's statement, however, is entirely beside the question, and in no way affects it. If the Bank of Australia paid £150,000 of their engagement for Hughes and Hosking, they would of course charge them to the account of that firm, as they were paid; but if the Bank of Australia was enabled, with borrowed money, to pay off its own obligations, (no matter for whom contracted), it is obvious that that Bank was lucratus by the money so borrowed, and the amount of debt so discharged with it.

2. The second assertion "That the Bank of Australasia did not intend that the money should go into the coffers of Hughes and Hosking," is met by an extract from a letter from Mr. Hart—the superintendent of the Bank of Australasia, under date the 1st June, 1843, in which he states "that there was a distinct undertaking on the part of the Bank of Australia to charge itself with the liquidation of all Messrs. Hughes and Hosking's engagements." This passage of Mr. Hart's letter, however, has reference—not to the loan itself—but to one of the conditions of the loan, according to which the Bank of Australia undertook to act, as the trustee of Hughes and Hosking, and in that capacity, to realise their assets and pay off their outstanding debts, but which condition, it is needless to say, was never fulfilled by the Bank of Australia.

3. In quoting the third assertion, the following words are omitted, "when they applied to the Bank of Australasia for assistance," (see Herald of the 12th instant). The "assertion" would then stand as follows: "That the money was disbursed in payment of obligations on which the directors of the Bank of Australia represented their Bank as primarily liable, when they applied to the Bank of Australasia for assistance." When thus corrected, the answer has no bearing on the assertion. The Balance Sheet and Report laid before the meeting of the proprietors of the Bank of Australia, on the 17th January, 1843, were not published, and the Bank of Australasia had, therefore, no knowledge of them. How it was that the directors of the Bank of Australia were so ignorant of the true state of the affairs of their Bank on the 17th January, and had acquired so correct a knowledge of its position on the 21st of the following month, which is the date of the statement submitted by them to the Bank of Australasia, is a matter that rests between them and their proprietors, with which the Bank of Australasia has no concern. It may or it may not be true, that during that interval the directors of the Bank of Australia were "concocting in secret an extraordinary transaction with Hughes and Hosking,"—it may or it may not be true, that the proprietary of the Bank of Australia were in total ignorance of the existence of engagements which were known to every man of business, and were held by every Bank in the place—but the assertion that the Bank of Australasia was in any way a party to the "secret concoction" of any transactions whatever, either with the Bank of Australia or with Hughes and Hosking, has no foundation.

4th. In answer to the 4th assertion, "that the only portion of the advance of £150,000 which returned to the Bank of Australasia was £46,800," is quoted Mr. Hart's evidence on the 3rd April, 1845,—that on the 27th February, 1843, the direct and indirect liabilities of Hughes and Hosking and John Terry Hughes, in the Bank of Australasia, were about £125,000, for which no security was held; that at that date the 3rd April, 1845, that Bank still held about £28,000 of that paper, a portion of which, to the extent of £20,000, was secured; that no security was obtained direct from Hughes and Hosking, but that he knew that the endorsers, who made arrangements with the Bank, were furnished with the means of doing so by Hughes and Hosking. Taking this report by the evidence to be correct, which it is not, in what way does it prove that any portion of the £150,000 beyond the £46,800, returned to the Bank of Australasia? In the course of the trial, as well as in this answer, an attempt has been made to mystify the real amount of Hughes and Hosking's debt to the Bank of Australasia, by mixing up together their direct and indirect liabilities—their acceptances, with their contingent liabilities on endorsements—no part either of their indirect or direct liabilities were, however, paid by Hughes and Hosking, while the evidence of the same witness proves, that the latter amounted on the 21st February, 1843, to about £40,000, and that on the 3rd April, 1845, they had been reduced by the endorsers to about £28,000—Security was obtained by some of the endorsers from Hughes and Hosking, and that security consisted of property that had been given up to them by the Bank of Australia in violation of its agreement with the Bank of Australasia, to hold the whole in trust for the general creditors; but the assertion "that the only portion of the advance of £150,000 which returned to the Bank of Australasia was £46,800," remains untouched by this answer.

The writer of the memorandum inserted in the Herald of the 12th instant, never intended it for publication. Conceiving that the editors of that paper had fallen into an error, which, as respectable journalists, they would be glad to correct on its being pointed out to them, the memorandum was drawn up for their information as a simple statement of facts, which facts were fully supported by the very lucid and masterly charge of the Chief Justice (a charge which professed to express the unanimous opinion of the three Judges as to the facts of the case) on the occasion of the last trial. The editors believing, it is presumed, that they might have been guilty of some injustice, inserted the memorandum itself in their leading article, which has entailed upon the writer of it the necessity of refuting the fallacies by which an effort has been made to throw discredit on the assertions contained in it. It was not, however, the intention of the writer to allow himself to be dragged into a newspaper controversy, and he will not therefore notice any further misrepresentations or inaccuracies that may be published in respect to the matter at issue between the two Banks.—Communicated.

ABSTRACT OF SALES BY AUCTION THIS DAY.

MR LLOYD.—At his Rooms, at 11 o'clock, Preserved Meats and Vegetables, Grocer's Twine, Castor Oil, Venice Turpentine, Vials, Tin Plates, &c.

MR COHEN.—At his Rooms, at 11 o'clock, Colours, Brushware, &c.

MR. STUBBS.—At the corner of Park and Castlereagh-street, at 11 o'clock, Household Furniture and Effects.

MR. BLACKMAN.—At his Rooms, at 12 o'clock, Government Stock at Moreton Bay—12,115 Ewes, Wethers, Lambs, and Rams.

COUNTRY SALE.

MR. BULL.—At Bangalore, February 2, Sheep, Horses and Cattle.

DIOCESAN COMMITTEE.—The anniversary of the Australian Diocesan Committee of the Societies for the Propagation of the Gospel and Promoting Christian Knowledge will be held to-day. There will be Divine service at St. James's Church in the morning, and a public meeting in the Castlereagh-street School Room in the evening, at seven o'clock.

THE JURY LISTS.—A meeting of all the magistrates in the district has been convened for ten o'clock to-day, for the purpose of examining and correcting the Jury List for the ensuing year. All parties having objections to make, or claims to be admitted as jurors, are expected to be in attendance.

FLOUR.—The price of this article advanced £1 per ton, on Saturday. The millers are now selling at £10, and are offering 4s. per bushel for the best wheat.

POLICE COURT BUSINESS.—There were [fif]teen cases on the drunkards' list, to wit—[four] women, two of whom were ordered each to pay 11s. or go twelve hours to the cells, and the other two to pay a like sum or be confined in the cells for twenty-four hours. Of the men on the same list, four paid 11s. each, [...] were each ordered to pay a like sum or go twelve hours to the cells, and the remaining one to pay a like sum or go twenty-four hours to the same place. There was one case on the summons list, viz.:—John Phillips v. Captain Winter of the Vixen, for refusing to pay a [sea]man his wages, which was postponed till Wednesday, at the request of the parties, in order to allow time for an amicable arrangement to be made out of Court. There were six remanded cases on the list of miscellaneous charges, viz: two for receiving stolen property, and one for being accessory to a prisoner's escape, all again remanded; [a] man for a breach of the peace, was discharged; and Michael Coucher, a seaman belonging to the Amelia, Captain John Teasdale, for being absent from his vessel without leave, was ordered to be sent on board the same; Michael Ran[...]don, for stealing four books from the shop of Mr. Colman, bookseller, George-street, was committed for trial, on the ground that he was the individual who took the stolen property and sold it to Kern and Co., Hunter-street, for about one-half its marketable value. There were nineteen new cases on the same list, viz: one for horse stealing, by warrant, was remanded to the bench at Maitland; one for a breach of the peace, was dismissed at the request of the prosecutrix; Robert Morrow, a cab driver, for stealing a hat in order to compel his fare to pay what was demanded, was admonished and discharged. A man and his wife for passing base coin, were also admonished and discharged, together with a female for being guilty of disorderly conduct. One case for malicious destruction of property, two for assault, one for stealing a shoemaker's tool, were all remanded. There were two cases for breaches of the peace, in each of which the defendants were bound to keep the same. Three females for street walking, were each sent to gaol for one calendar month; a female for being drunk, and using bad language, was admonished and fined 11s. and two men for being drunk and assaulting the constable were each fined 10s. and 5s. costs

Our readers will remember that about the end of the year 1844 a number of gentlemen signed an address to the Governor, disclaiming any participation in certain expressions in the Crown Land Grievance Report. The signers of that address have received a copy of the following despatch from Lord Stanley to Sir G. Gipps:—"Downing-street, 17th August, 1845. Sir, I have received your despatch dated the 1st December, 1844, No. 251, enclosing the copy of an address that had been presented to you on the 27th November, by various Members of the Legislative Council of New South Wales, and others, disclaiming any participation in certain injurious expressions contained in the Report of a Committee of the Legislative Council, of which a copy was transmitted with your despatch No. 215, of the 30th September last, and also enclosing a copy of your answer to that address. You will signify to the gentlemen who signed that address, the gratification which Her Majesty's Government have derived from the perusal of a document so honourable to the character and feelings of the authors of it. I have, &c., STANLEY."

PHYSICAL DESCRIPTION OF NEW SOUTH WALES.—It is not very much to our national credit that the first scientific work on one of our most important colonies should be from the pen of a foreigner. New South Wales has been colonised fifty-seven years, and the physical descriptions of that and the sister colony only issued from the press about four months ago. The author, P. E. De Strzelecki, is a Polish nobleman, one of the illustrious victims of Russian despotism. He has spent twelve years in voyages and travels round the Globe, and has explored North and South America, part of the West Indies, the South Sea Islands, New Zealand, New South Wales, Van Diemen's Land, the Javanese Islands, part of China, and the East Indies and Egypt. In Van Diemen's Land this gentleman appears to have acquired the good will of the settlers in a remarkable manner, for he not only received an address of thanks for his exertions in developing the natural resources of Tasmania, but also a more solid mark of esteem in the shape of a subscription, amounting to about £400, which has enabled him to publish the work before us. This description, he says, is the result of journeys through the colonies of 7,000 miles on foot, and is thus divided:—First. The history and results of the Marine Surveys of Terra Australia, and the Land Surveys of the Colonies. Second,—Terrestrial Magnetism. Third,—Geology and Mineralogy. Fourth,—Climatology. Fifth,—Fossil and existing Flora. Sixth.—Fossil and existing Fauna. The Seventh,—Physical, Moral, and Social state of the Aborigines. And lastly,—the state of Colonial Agriculture. The above enumeration shows the importance of the subjects treated, and we think the reader will not be disappointed with the information afforded on all of them. Mr. De Strzelecki is struck with the progress of the colonists, and attributes it to "the hardy nature of the Anglo-Saxon race, which, he says, is proof against the effects of transplantation, for it does not depend on the soil either for its character or its nationality; the Anglo-Saxon re-produces his country wherever he hoists his country's flag." The history of British colonisation is certainly a wonderful proof of energy and perseverance. Compare the United States with the Spanish colonies, which had a hundred years the start of them; or these Australian with those of the same parallel in Chili, nearly three hundred years older. It is impossible not to attribute the difference to race, as much as to institutions. Mr. De Strzelecki commences with a comparison between the original landing of Governor Phillip with his party of convicts in 1788, and the opening of the Legislative Council at Sydney in 1843. Certainly no fifty-five years ever witnessed a more rapid progress in any country. The principal object of our author's travels in New South Wales was to examine its mineralogy. His researches are, as he says, far from complete, but we have no hesitation in saying that they will be the foundation on which future geological and mineralogical travellers must build. He mentions having completed a geological map of the colony on a very large scale, but which he cannot undertake to publish. We can scarcely doubt that he will be assisted in this object by the Geological Society. We cannot follow our author through these scientific details. He earnestly recommends a Geological Survey of the colonies at the public expense. Two hundred thousand pounds, he says, have already been expended on surveys, conducted on no scientific principles, leading to no useful results, and causing endless litigation among the settlers, whose boundaries have been so imperfectly defined. He says the Geological Surveyor's functions ought to be official, "not because an official character would carry, in matters of science, greater weight and authority than private and well-known skill, but because the official geologist would find unrestrained access to every nook of the country to which his enquiry would lead him, and would be placed at once above that suspicion by which the inhabitants of every new country are inclined to question the purity of the intentions that actuate the naturalist, often rendering his progress unpleasant, and sometimes dangerous." The result of our author's geological investigation treated economically is, that New South Wales seems destined to become a pastoral, and Van Diemen's Land an agricultural country. The latter has the advantage of an immense reservoir for irrigation, consisting of lakes nearly three thousand feet above the level of the sea, "capable of irrigating all the adjacent lands available to cultivation." Winds and currents are also treated of at considerable length. The conclusions to which our author comes as to the hot winds are favourable to agriculture; they are less injurious than in other countries where they prevail, though sufficiently unfavourable. Notwithstanding the prevailing opinion as to the extreme dryness of New South Wales, accurate observation shows that Sydney has double the quantity of rain that falls annually in London. Neither is the evaporation excessive, so that the dryness must be attributed in a great measure to the soil. The general result of the researches into climate shows that it is highly favourable to animal and vegetable life. No endemic disease, and no epidemic of grave character prevails. The total exemption from intermittent fevers which the settlers have hitherto enjoyed, is an advantage which cannot be over estimated, and which will be apparent to those who have seen the effects of this scourge in America. Mr. De Strzelecki comes to the conclusion that the days of the aborigines are numbered, and that no precautions on the part of the Government will save them from extinction. He attributes their decrease in all countries which Europeans have colonised to a physical law, and not to new diseases, or the effects of wars. At the same time, he thinks that they have been most injudiciously treated by the Government, and that the sanguinary conflicts which have taken place between the aborigines and the settlers have been caused by mismanagement. Thus our author adds his valuable testimony to those which we have so often mentioned, as to the absurd regulations of the Colonial Office, the full fruits of which have not yet been gathered in Australia, though they have been matured in New Zealand and the Cape Colony. Mr De Strzelecki does not think that agriculture has been hitherto well understood in the colonies, though he mentions farms which might compare with those of England, and he gives ample credit to the enterprising spirit of the settlers. He says, "Marvellous indeed must that epoch appear in the annals of colonisation, to one who, like the writer, has ventured on a journey to Australia by way of the Spanish colonies of three hundred years standing, and not less marvellous is the result, when it is borne in mind, that hardly thirty years have elapsed since the first ram was imported into New South Wales, and that the number of sheep at present amounts to nearly nine millions!" He thinks that great improvements may be made in the management of flocks, and, no doubt, when competition becomes more keen, such points as conduce to economical management and to fineness of fleece will be more closely attended to. He says, that three points require the attention of Government—first, the abolition of the uniform price of land; secondly, the construction of good roads at the public expense; and thirdly, a free market for the grain of the colonies in the mother-country. This last will soon be conceded. The corn laws are very nearly at the last gasp, and it is understood by all parties that they cannot be maintained. Our author concludes by giving his opinion that no colonies will react more beneficially upon the mother country than New South Wales and Van Diemen's Land. We have given this passing notice of a highly interesting work, not with the expectation of analysing its contents, but rather to point it out to those of our readers who take an interest either in the colonies, or the sciences of which it treats.—Calcutta Englishman.

Lighting the City.—At length there is a prospect of having a large portion of the city lighted during the ensuing winter, the City Council having resolved that all those parts of the city where gas-pipes can be laid shall be lighted. A rate of five farthings in the pound was ordered to defray the necessary expense.

Saddle Stealing.—Between eight o'clock on Sunday night and six o'clock yesterday morning, the stables attached to Government House, in the Domain, Sydney, were entered through the dunghole, and a couple of saddles, together with the bridles, value £4, carried off.

We are particularly requested by Mr. Stubbs to remind furnishing cabinetmakers, private families, and others, that the extensive sale of the household furniture and effects of the late Mr George Segerson, will commence at eleven o'clock precisely, this day, on the premises, Castlereagh-street.—Communicated.

NEWS FROM THE INTERIOR.

(From our various Correspondents.)

PARRAMATTA.

Inquest.—Singular Death.—An inquest was held on Friday, by the Coroner for the district, Mr. C. B. Lyons, at Castle Hill, touching the death of a boy named Norris. It appeared from the evidence adduced that the deceased, who was an orphan child of about nine years of age, was on the previous day returning from school in company with a schoolfellow and playmate named Reuben Fuller, from whom he snatched a peach, which the latter had in his hand. Fuller, who is not above seven years of age, immediately took up a stone and flung it at Norris, and which hit him on the back, but inflicted no injury, and afterwards threw a lump of hard earth, which hit the deceased on the head and fractured the skull, and from the severity of the injury sustained he in a short time afterwards expired. The Jury returned a verdict of homicide.

The Assault on Mr. Digby.—Owing to Mr. Digby not having sufficiently recovered from the injury he sustained by the attack of the prisoner Maher on him, the remanded examination of this man did not take place on Saturday, as was stated would be the case in the Sydney Morning Herald of that day.

Cloth Factory.—Some few months since Messrs. James and William Byrnes announced that it was their intention to erect, adjoining to their steam flour mills, at the Queen's Wharf, in this town, a cloth factory, and had sent to England to procure the requisite machinery. Within the last three months considerable activity has been used, and an extensive pile of solid and substantial brickwork has been erected, and in a few weeks the entire building will be completed. The machinery is daily expected from England, and as Messrs. Byrnes have this season purchased about £6000 worth of wool, operations on an extensive scale may be expected to commence before the season arrives, which will be certain of affording these gentlemen's factory, if they send into the market a good article, full work and good remuneration for their spirited enterprise; the latter result may be said, viewing the demand which exists in this and the neighbouring colonies for tweed, to be a certain attendant on the former, and as the orders given for the machinery were that it should be made on the most approved principles now in use in England, and the wool selected for commencing work is picked samples, there is every reason to believe that as good an article as any in the colony will be produced.

GOULBURN.

January 17.—This day being appointed for the revising of the Jury List, a full bench of magistrates was in attendance, and after the list had been gone over, the late sanguinary ejectment affair at Lake George was brought on, and lasted till 8 p.m., and which ended in the committal of Mr. Lowe, sen., for shooting at Mr. Byrne and those who were with him. John Wall, and the aboriginal black named Jamie, being of his party, were also committed for aiding and abetting. The principal evidence was that of Mr. John Byrne.

Mr. John Byrne, licensed victualler: On the 5th of January I went over from my residence to Mrs. Kenny's, who resides about three-quarters of a mile from other premises belonging to her, but which was occupied by Mr. James Lowe; I went to the said premises with nine men and two boys; Mrs. Kenny wished to go also, but I would not let her. Mr. Lowe had promised repeatedly to go out on twenty-four hours' notice, or to show such documents as would entitle him to remain in possession; it was for the purpose of getting Mr. Lowe out of the premises we went over to where he resided; we were going down the back yard, which is a kind of avenue, and the usual approach to the house; I saw Mr. Lowe standing near the house with a double-barrel fowling-piece in his hand; he said, "I'll shoot you—I'll shoot you;" that is all I heard him say when he fired the first shot, which took effect in my left eye, the sight of which I have lost ever since [Dr. Yarnold, in his evidence, said that some of the shot had penetrated the orbit, and that the sight was irretrievably gone] Mr. Lowe fired the second shot immediately after the first, part of which I received in my left ear, and some of it went close by the jugular vein; when those shots were fired I was about forty feet distant; there was nothing said between the first and second shots being fired; I then saw another gun poking out of a window; the person who had it I took to be Mr. Lowe's son; it was by his voice I formed my opinion; he said, "Stand back, or you will be shot;" I received part of the contents of the gun which was poking out at the window in my left arm, and in a moment after I received another shot in my right arm; I swear there were two distinct shots; having turned round, I do not know who fired them; when I turned round again I saw Mr. Lowe with a gun in his hand; this was the second one he had, I know he changed it, for he had not time to load it; it was not the same one that he had at first; one of the men who was with me, who had taken down a slab in the kitchen, received a shot in his breast from inside the kitchen; the shot came through the hole caused by the slab being removed; the name of the man who removed the slab and received the shot was Owen Jones, and from his breast the blood gushed out like a fountain; some of the men made to go away—indeed we all endeavoured to do so, when I heard some one from behind say, "Shoot the rebels—shoot them;" I took it to be Mr. Lowe who said so,—and then I received some shot in my legs, and when making away I also received some in my back; after I got outside the rails I think there were three shots fired; some of the men were also shot when coming away; one of them was Thomas Lancaster, who when he received the shot fell, and bled desperately; he would have bled to death had not some means been used to prevent it; I did not see any of the prisoners there except Mr. Lowe; one of the men who went with me was William Hayes, he was also wounded when I received the first shot, and Thomas Lancaster was wounded by the second or third shot which was fired—this was the first wound Lancaster received; we were followed by Mr. Lowe and his party about 130 yards outside the fence; a cart had to be sent to remove Lancaster; the prisoner Wall, and the aboriginal native, were both living with Mr. Lowe at the time of the occurrence; my party had no fire-arms; when the first shot was fired, it was pointed at myself and Hayes; when he fired off the first two shots, Mr. Lowe went to the verandah, as I supposed, to get his piece reloaded, but returned with another.

Cross-examined by Mr. Ogle: I did not see the prisoner Wall, or the aboriginal native, on the day of the occurrence; I went to get possession of the place from Mr. Lowe, who had promised to give it up to me; it was some time before he promised to do so—to the best of my recollection it was two months before; Mr. Lowe did show me some kind of document which pretended to authorise him to retain possession; I am not aware of any law proceedings going on in reference to this property between Mrs. Kenny and Mr Lowe; I once saw a copy of an ejectment which was served on Mrs. Kenny by Mr. Lowe; it was about five or six weeks before the occurrence on the 5th that I saw the document. [Some other questions were here put by Mr. Ogle, but were immaterial] Cross-examination resumed: I did not hold out any inducement to any of the persons who accompanied me, nor did I hear Mrs. Kenny or any other person hold out any inducement for them to go; there were only Broggan and Daly with me when I left my own house, all the rest were at Mrs. Kenny's; I had a stick with me and a kind of shield; one of Mrs. Kenney's boys carried a small broad axe, which was all the weapons which our party carried. I was about forty or fifty yards off when I first saw Mr Lowe on the day in question; neither I or any of my party broke down paling, neither did I see any of my men cutting down the stock-yards; I did not see either stones or sticks thrown at Mr. Lowe, but I saw a stone thrown on the shingles; there were no stones thrown before the firing commenced. When coming to the house we did not divide; we all came by the one way. There was no part of the fence broken down to allow Broggan to get through; Broggan was upon a horse, and so was Benson; the latter was none of our party. All I understood Mr Lowe to have said when we came up was, "I'll shoot you—I'll shoot you." The first shot that was fired was not in the air but in my eye; another man also received a part of it; there were from eight to ten shots fired altogether. I did not say we will have the —— wretch out; I did not say I'll have blood before I leave the house; I did not follow Mr Lowe to the house after the first shot was fired; none of our party were near the front or back of the house so as to break the door; I was not shouting when I went up, neither did I hear any.

Thomas Lancaster, Owen Jones, William Hayes, and Richard Fitzpatrick, all of whom were wounded, were examined; but the foregoing, and the following evidence of John Francis Kenney, contains all the particulars.

John Francis Kenny: I accompanied Mr. Byrne to where Mr. Lowe resided, on the 5th instant, to obtain quiet and peaceable possession of the premises occupied by him, and if not allowed to do so in this way, to use other means When we arrived at the place, the first man I saw shot was Hayes; I also saw blood flowing from Mr. Byrne's eyes. Immediately after two shots had been fired, Mr Byrne said, "Let us come away, there is enough of us shot; there is no use for us to stop and all be shot" Jones turned to go away, and when about three yards from the kitchen, he received a shot slantways When we were all going away, Mr. James Lowe came out of the house and again fired a double-barrelled piece at the men retreating; he then went back to the house again, and came out with a double barrelled piece; his son, William C. Lowe, came out at the other side of the house. The men in retreating divided; one part of them went by the right side of the stock-yard—these were followed by the father, Mr. James Lowe,—whilst those which went by the left side of it were followed by the son, who levelled his piece; but when he drew the trigger it did not go off. I cannot tell at whom it was pointed. When we were passing the stock-yard I was told to look behind me, which I did. I saw the son go over to the father, who put his piece over the fence, and fire at Byrne or Lancaster, and both of them were hurt by the shot; the son also lodged his piece on the fence and fired; the father then went about seven yards in advance closer to the wounded men, and then fired; Thomas Lancaster dropped, Mr Byrne helped him up, and got him on a short distance, when he fell again and begged those who were helping him on to leave him that he might die easy; four men then tried to carry him, but he could not stand it; a cart was sent for, and by it he was sent to Mrs. Kenny's. I swear I saw the native black, the prisoner, and also John Wall, amongst Mr. Lowe's mob. When we were retreating, Mr. James Lowe came running down the hill, with some of his people, gave a shout of triumph, and then turned back. Altogether there were eight or nine shots fired.

The investigation concluded by Dr. Yarnold giving in his statement of the several persons whom he had attended, and produced a quantity of the shot which he had extracted, principally from the backs of those who were wounded. There were two kinds of shot used; the largest was buck, but the greater quantity was of a smaller kind. There were six men wounded, but one of them did not come in. One of them received as many as fifty-eight small shot, and some of them seemed to be suffering considerably, but Mr. Byrne was the worst.

Previous to committing him, Mr. J. F. M'Arthur cautioned Mr. Lowe as to any statement he wished to make. Mr. Lowe said that he considered he acted in self-defence, and but for acting as he had done, neither him nor one of his party would have been left to tell the tale; he was convinced that they would have reduced the house to ashes, and murdered every one of them. Wall and the aboriginal native made no statement. Mr. Lowe was committed to take his trial for shooting at Byrne, Hayes, Jones, Fitzpatrick, and Lancaster; and the other prisoners for aiding and abetting.

We are sorry to say that another of Mr. Lowe's sons has got himself into trouble, being charged with forgery. Just as the father was being brought up for examination the son was incarcerated.

Lord Aberdeen a Guy Faux.—The French have been sorely tried in logic and in temper by English accusations against them for baking Arabs. Instead of admitting the fact, offering what excuses might be urged in extenuation, and exerting themselves to prevent a repetition of such enormities, the French think to clear themselves by a Tu quoque. They have raked English history, with very little knowledge of it, and found some burnings of Irish barns. From Irish history they went to Indian; and instead of lighting upon some of our undoubted cruelties, they adduced the undoubted lie of British officers despoiling the women of the harem of the Ameer of Scinde of their jewels. Not satisfied with the force of these retorts, they at once desert historic research, and consulting their imagination for facts, have certainly made one of the most remarkable discoveries of our time. This discovery is neither more nor less than the fact, that it is the English who the other day burned the dockyard of Toulon. They evidently hope by the light of this conflagration to extinguish altogether the bone-and-flesh fire lighted by Colonel Pelissier, whose immortal memory has been canonised by Marshal Soult of the "illustrious sword." The incendiary of the little dockyard of Toulon (we wonder why he did not select the great one) could be no other than John Bull. He did the thing before, in open day indeed, with arms in his hands; but now his character is so degenerated, that he is reduced to effect the same thing by the midnight torch. To be sure, it is clearly proved that it was the French galley slaves who set fire to the dockyard; but, how, argue the French, could that interesting population, which works in chains, imagine or commit an act so anti-national, unless they were bribed by the descendants of Pitt and Coburg, the Ministers of England? In France, to suppose any crime against an Englishman is at once to prove it; and that we have burned the Toulon dockyard by means of its convicts, is henceforth one of the "accomplished feats" of the Napoleonian history of England. But who was the instrument, the chief actor and suborner of the deed? Who is the Guy Faux of the day? Who bemasked and begrimed his visage, and descended with gold in one hand, and a dark lanthorn in the other, to bribe the gentlemen of the red night-cap to burn their workshops? Who could be possessed of the villany, hardihood, cunning, the fierce vindictiveness, the unrelenting hatred, requisite for such a crime? Who, but my Lord Aberdeen! His Lordship will be much surprised to find himself thus transmogrified into one of Eugene Sue's heroes. The Chronicle, which accuses him of not being able to hold a candle to M Guizot, will be startled at finding his Lordship convicted of holding a torch; and John Bull, who has kept this very pacific Minister in office chiefly on the strength of his character for doing nobody any harm, will, we fear, remain somewhat incredulous of his own and of his Lordship's guilt.—Examiner.

The Power of Facts—There is an immense power in facts. The long contemplation, and, for a time, the barren contemplation, of one simple fact has often led to the sublimest discoveries. The fall of an apple elicited the theory of gravitation; the ascent of a soap bubble the laws of colour and light. It is so in the history of nations, the bare sight of the blood-stained dagger, or of its bleeding victim, has overthrown dynasties. Such is the power of a picture, or of a ballad. It is a fact boldly exhibited and appealing to the hearts of men. Wherever there is public opinion, wherever there is common sense and common feeling, a fact is sure to have its weight. It is a battering-ram, which, though it only be one instrument, yet by many successive blows will break through the thickest and hardest prejudice or stupidity. It is the continual drop which wears the stones. So, we say, if there be a great and distressing body of facts with some great mystery of iniquity, or error, or misfortune connected with it, tell it, and tell it, and tell it again. Tell it in a thousand forms. Tell it with perpetual variety of circumstance, and novelty of view. Tell it of this locality, and tell it of that. Tell it of twenty years back, and tell it of now. Tell it of the mass, and tell it of individuals. Give sums total, and particular instances. Give names and places. Make the fact familiar, and yet vast; detailed, and yet marvellous. Do all this with a laborious and painful accuracy which cannot be gainsaid. Be a very slave to the truth. Before a generation is past the fact will speak for itself and find a cure. You will have endued a mere fact with life and energy. An undeniable statement, which admits of being comprehended in ten words, and which was once the ineffectual subject of whole libraries, will at last have more power than ten million men.—Times.

The Society for the Encouragement of Arts, Manufactures, and Commerce, offers the following premiums in the class of Colonies and Trade. Claims for the following premiums are to be sent in on or before the second Tuesday in March. It is absolutely necessary that all statements made by candidates residing in the colonies should be authenticated by the certificates of the governor or secretary of the colony, or by two justices of the peace, or other competent local authorities. To the person who shall raise the greatest quantity of flax, of good quality, in any of the British possessions in the East Indies and Australasia, being the produce of not less than five English acres; the Gold Isis Medal. Certificates of the number of acres cultivated, the mode of culture, the nature of the soil, and weight of the produce, together with fourteen pounds of flax, to be forwarded to the society. To the person who shall import at least two tons of any vegetable fibre which shall be equally cheap, strong, and durable, and applicable to all the purposes for which hemp is now used; the Gold Isis Medal. To the person who shall import the greatest quantity of real Cashmere wool, or other wool of equal quality and value, not less than 1 cwt., and in a state fit for spinning; the Gold Isis Medal. Samples of the wool not less than five pounds weight, to be produced to the society.—To the person who shall produce in any British colony, and shall import the greatest quantity of silk proper for manufactures, not less than one hundred pounds weight; the Gold Isis Medal. Specimens of the silk, not less than one pound, with an account of the method by which the silk worms were managed, the kind of trees or plants whence they were furnished with food, and particulars respecting the culture of the trees or plants for that purpose, to be produced to the society.—To the person who shall import the finest quality of silk produced in the East Indies, equal to the best Italian or China silk; the Gold Isis Medal. One pound of silk to be sent to the society as a sample, with certificates that at least 100 lbs. of equal quality have been imported.—To the person who shall communicate to the society the best account of the process employed in China for the manufacture of paper used in England for copper plate printing, and known by the name of India paper, together with an account of the materials from which such paper is made; the Gold Isis Medal. Specimens of the paper, with samples of the materials in their raw or unmanufactured state, to be produced to the society.—To the person who shall communicate to the society the best account of the processes employed in China in manufacturing porcelain, with specimens of the earths and plans of the furnaces; the Gold Isis Medal.—To any person who shall dry and import into Great Britain from any British colony or possession, the best samples of plantains, or bananas, not less than 2 cwt.; the Gold Isis Medal. For the next in quality; the large Silver Medal. It is required that the candidates send to the society a sample, not less than 10 lbs., with a certificate that at least 2 cwt. have been imported, of quality equal to the sample; also a written communication, stating the nature of the soil in which the plants have grown, the average weight of the bunches, the proportion of dried fruit from 100 lbs. of the fresh ripe fruit; together with a full detail of the whole method of preparation.

ADJOINING THE COMMERCIAL BANK.

DAWSON AND THOMPSON respectfully inform their friends and the public, that they intend opening the above premises on Saturday, the 17th January, with a complete assortment of Woollen and Linen Drapery, Silk Mercery, Hosiery, Haberdashery, &c.

D. and T. have, in addition to the extensive stock purchased from Mr. W. R. Richardson, received per late arrivals, a choice assortment of New Goods, which renders their stock replete with every article appertaining to the trade, and will afford such peculiar opportunities as will enable the proprietors of Commerce House to vend the best description of Goods, on such advantageous terms as are

UNAPPROACHABLE BY MOST HOUSES, AND SURPASSED BY NONE.

It seldom occurs that reductions to so great an extent are made on Goods in daily requirement by every class, and it is only a concurrence of favourable circumstances that enables D. and T. to offer such direct and decided advantages to

SETTLERS, STOREKEEPERS, MASTERS OF WHALERS, SEAFARING MEN, AND THE PUBLIC GENERALLY.

The proprietors of Commerce House refrain from giving a list of goods and prices, lest an inferior description might be inferred; although in every instance the Goods which are of the best quality will be offered at such tempting and irresistible prices that must induce visitors to purchase largely, wanting or not.

In conclusion, Dawson and Thompson beg to state, that the principles of their establishment will be strictly adhering to the system of one price, and allowing no deception, and selling at the lowest remunerating profit for cash only.

The whole of the departments being under the management of the proprietors, whose ardent exertions are bent to the task of supplying every novelty as produced, and it will ever be an object with D. and T. to constitute their establishment a great depôt, at which the public can procure every article useful for dress and household purposes, on such terms as must give satisfaction to all classes of the community.

FRENCH SEMINARY, HARRINGTON-STREET, SYDNEY.

MADAME BERTHEAU, from Paris, has the honour to intimate to the families of Sydney and neighbourhood, that she has opened an establishment for a limited number of young ladies, in which the usual branches of a polite female education will be taught, including plain and fancy needlework, the French language, drawing in landscape, Oriental tinting, and flower modelling in wax.

The pupils will have the advantage of obtaining a thorough knowledge of the French language, combined with the true Parisian accent, it being the intention of Madame B. to conduct the scholastic duties, and carry on conversation with her pupils, in her native tongue.

Terms for board and instruction, per quarter £6 0 0

In addition to the above, music and dancing will be taught by eminent masters, at an extra charge.

Morning classes will be held twice a week, from seven to half past eight, for instruction in the above brances of education, and in which Oriental tinting and modelling flowers in wax may be learned in six lessons; and under Madame Bertheau's system a good handwriting may be obtained in from six to ten lessons.

Parents and guardians are respectfully invited to an examination of Madame Bertheau's system of tuition, which has given much satisfaction to many ladies in Sydney, to whom she is permitted to refer; as also to Mr. Alderman Allen, and Mrs. Clarke, Kent-street.

THIS DAY, 20TH JANUARY,

At 11 o'clock,

THE undermentioned valuable Properties, affording the most eligible opportunity for the safe and profitable investment of capital, which it has been his good fortune to offer to the public notice for a considerable time past.

No. 1.

The justly celebrated and really beautiful Estate of

well known to the stockholders of Wellington and Bathurst, as one of the best selections in those districts, consisting of 3328 Acres, and described in the Title Deeds as—

"All that piece or parcel of Land, "containing by admeasurement—
"2,560 acres, be the same more or less, "situate, lying, and being, in the "County of Bathurst, Parish of "_____, in the Territory of "New South Wales, at Kangaroo Bay, "near Molong, bounded partly on the "east by a line from Nandhillon Ponds "south forty-six chains fifty links, to a "corner village reserve: on the south "by the village reserve, west eighty "chains, and a continued west line "thirty-five chains; on the west by "a line of two hundred and fifty-"seven chains from Nandhillon "Ponds; on the north and re-"mainder of Nandhillon Ponds, to the "point of commencement," being granted to Joseph Taylor, on or before the 15th day of March, 1841, and being the land inserted as No. 1 in the Government notice of the 28th March, 1836, to be called the "Dovedale Park," subject to a quit-rent of £21 0s. 8d. per annum.

TOGETHER WITH,

"All that piece or parcel of Land "consisting of—
"768 acres, situate in the county of Wel-"lington, in Parish of
"on the Nandhillon Ponds, bounded "on the east partly by a line south, "commencing at a marked tree on the "Nandhillon Ponds, forming the "north-west corner of Joseph Taylor's "2569 acres grant, ten chains; on the "south by a line west one hundred and "five chains; on the west by a line "north eighty chains; on the north by "a line west sixty-one chains to the "Nandhillon Ponds, being the lot sold "as Lot 96, in pursuance of advertise-"ment of 12th January, 1836.

3,328 in all.

Remarks on the above.

With the view of securing to himself a compact park-like demesne, the original proprietor added by purchase, at great expense, the 768 acres last described to the original grant, by which means he succeeded in completing one of the most beautiful estates in the fertile district of which it forms a part. The Nandhillon Ponds and Kangaroo Bay, to both of which the property has almost exclusive access, afford a never failing supply of water in all seasons, and being bounded by the government village reserve, the purchaser will enjoy, as the concentration of the population takes place, all the advantages which that circumstance is calculated to produce.

The Land, without any improvement whatever, was originally leased to Joshua John Moore, Esq., of Liverpool, for twelve years—the first seven years at £100—five years at £150; and is now let to Thomas Kite, Esq., of Bathurst, the low rental of £125 per annum: facts which, having reference to the lengthened experience of judgment of these gentlemen, sufficiently estimate the great intrinsic value of the property.

Stockmen's huts, stockyards, and other necessary erections for forming a nucleus of a first-rate establishment, have already been made.

This property, with the run which it commands, will carry a large quantity of

SHEEP OR CATTLE.

No. 2.

That excellent and much frequented Inn and premises known as the

ROSE, SHAMROCK, AND THISTLE,

having a frontage to both Macquoid and Molonglo streets, in the town of QUEANBEYAN.

The house contains 10 or 12 rooms, most admirably adapted for public accommodation and comfort; detached kitchen and store, eight stall stable, coach-house, garden, large yard &c., and is now let to

on a lease of 3 years, from the 1st of January last past, under very stringent conditions as to keeping the premises in good repair, at the very low rent of £80 per annum.

To those acquainted with the Township of Queanbeyan, and with the locale of this Inn, the auctioneer deems it unnecessary to say one word in its praise; to those who have not that advantage, it will be sufficient to state that it is situated at the entrance of the township, at the junction of the roads from and to Sydney, Molonglo, Gundaroo to Manero, Twofold Bay, and all the populous southern districts, thus insuring at all times a lucrative business, and as a necessary consequence the certainty of its producing an adequate rental.

The Queanbeyan River, which abounds with perch and cod, runs at a distance of not more than 300 yards from the premises.

No. 3.

One Acre of Land at Botany, described in the title deeds as

"All that piece or parcel of land, contain-"ing one acre, more or less, situated in the "county of Cumberland, parish of Botany, "in the colony of New South Wales, "bounded on the north by a line bearing "east 4 chains 46 links, commencing at a "marked stake, and dividing it from a mea-"sured portion of 16½ acres of land; on the "east by a line bearing south 2 chains 24 "links to a stake dividing it from land pos-"sessed by Walter William Thwaites; on "the south by a line bearing west 4 chains "4 links, to a stake dividing it from the "property of the said W. W. Thwaites; "and on the west by a line to the afore-"said stake, dividing it from a Government "Road 1 chain wide."

Forming one of the prettiest sites for a genteel residence in that rapidly improving and respectable vicinity.
